Foreword

Go forth, first edition of Taquin, whose title is but a shortened form of Thomas Aquinas, our Saintly Patron's illustrious name! Preserve the heritage of our Aquinas years under his guiding influence!

May we, the staff of Taquin, be propagating greater glory to the Angel of the Schools and to the Master he loved so tenderly, by this our humble effort. This yearbook is based on the incidents in the life of St. Thomas as depicted in the murals on the Aquinas walls, and on his view of Man—the Leader, the Scholar, the Cooperative Being, and the strong Character.

To Our Parents

Dear Mom and Dad,

This is our book — yours and mine. Mine, because I'm an Aquinite. Yours, because in and through you, I have so many gifts of God . . .

Not the least is the opportunity to benefit from the wise teaching, magnificent example and true friendship of my Dominican teachers.

There are many things I can't mention here . . .

But, whether you watch my graduation from St. Philip's, or from the Greatest Cathedral of All, I want you to know that I love you, that I thank you, for unnumbered things, and that I hope you'll be proud of me . . . now and always.

And so, I dedicate Taquin to you. That you may enjoy and treasure it is my wish, that of the Class of '46 and of our yearbook staff. Scenes of happiness are here . . . Open and See!

Love,
Your Daughter

In the School of the Master, Albert.

Theme

The Aquinas Way

Aquinas Dominican High School has garnered through Dominicanism a distinctive quality, the Aquinas Way of Life and Learning, which is the theme for this issue of Taquin.

This theme gives a panoramic view of the Aquinite spending her day inspired by the life of St. Thomas, through the murals. The faculty, white-robed followers of St. Dominic, disperse the doctrine that he outlined for his teachers, "To praise, to teach and to bless."

The Aquinite is developed in her entirety — physically, socially, mentally and spiritually. Her spiritual life is incorporated in all her daily acts so that she lives the Faith. She is prepared for a life of Leadership, Scholarship, Cooperation, and Character.

Leadership . . .

From time immemorial a leader has been a man who stood out in front, between the people and their goal, so that they could be sure of the direction of their goal by a glance at the leader.

Executive and Legislative

Aquinas carries on, in its miniature world, a replica of a true democracy in action. Its Student Council has the three necessary branches of government, Legislative, Executive, Judicial. The Legislative department proposes laws; the Executive Council interprets them; the Judicial department enforces laws.

Rap, Rap, Rap . . . The tapping of the gavel calls for order in the library . . . a meeting between the legislative and the executive . . . old business . . . new business . . . teen age girls acquaint themselves with parliamentary procedure . . .

Discerning . . . Right From Wrong . . .

Judicial

Since the third branch of a democratic government is the Judicial, the Student Council has its system of court and judges. The Senior and Junior judges cooperate in making fair and just decisions assisted by clerks, bailiffs, lawyers and the attorney-general. Penalties following arrest and trial are issued and promptly fulfilled.

The Library Committee . . . reading shelves, checking, filing, lettering, stamping . . . watchful, alert fire-guards . . . marching out orderly . . . the building is clear.

. . . Teaching Respect For Law . . .

CIVIC AND SERVICE BUREAUS

A citizen in a commonwealth has many civic duties and services to render to both his country and his fellowman. Civic duties are performed by girls acting as hall and cafeteria guards who maintain order throughout the school. The Service Bureau accomplishes many tasks and contributes both time and ideas to help make all school activities a success.

Hall guards . . . quite a task . . . seven hundred girls migrate each forty minutes. Order and silence prevail.

Guards are appointed . . . badges distributed . . . arrest slips prepared . . . guard-posts given . . . never a dull moment for Nora Donnelly . . . Civic Bureau head.

What goes up must come down . . . the program is over . . . chairs come down in the wink of an eye . . . by an efficient Service Bureau . . . Dolores Wall in charge.

Where did you go on your first date?

Elaine Palmer—Freshman "My first date was the attendance at Saint Rita's prom; Eileen Faloona another Freshman doubled with us. An embarassing incident is traditional of the first date and I had mine when I lost my shoe in the middle of the dance floor. I want to remember the good time I had, but I wish I could forget the g

A Tribute To Friends

To pay tribute to a personage
Of attributes pronounced,
And scatter in their brilliant wake
Words weighed per pound and ounce,
Is common for the most part for those
Who follow blind
The heroes of the world today
Who capture mortal mind.

A million eyes we see a day!
A million hands we clasp!
A million helping arms fly out
To aid our reaching grasp.
Yet, these are trampled in the race
To please the fleeting guest.
And friendly praise, in white arrayed,
Is shown but to the best.

But why shouldn't we with common sense
And eyes of deeper hue
React to honor those we know
As being staunch and true.
Why join the wild and rushing crowd
Who stamp and cheer for more
From strangers they deem great—
And yet have never seen before.

Look deeper into facial form,
And deeper to the heart.
And realize that within this world
We play a better part.
We honor more ourselves and God
When to someone we send
A word or act considered as
A tribute to a friend.

A TRIBUTE
TO THE CLASS OF 1946

by

Mary Ann McBreen

Another turning of the road.
Another step to take.
Another chance to choose the way
Which leaves a brilliant wake.

The way beyond is rugged
As the way before has been,
But you possess the courage
To walk forth and not give in.

Perhaps a glimpse into the globe
Of future's trials and tears
Would bring to some a stubborness;
To others sobs and fears.

In years long past you did not stop
When trouble barred the way,
Nor hesitate, nor flounder
Midst the trials of the day.

Hold high your head so thoughtful
And shoulders firm and true.
Hold steady those so slender hands
And level eyes of blue.

For you have only just begun
To broaden with the world.
Experience was just a word—
Now into it you're hurled.

The road thus far was sheltered
With guides for every turn,
And when to darkness you would come
A faithful light would burn.

Ah yes, to be a leader
Took time and patience too.
And now to think you must begin
Once more, to see it through.

But now you'll clutch your treasure
Worth time and work it took,
And look back to the favorite halls,
The favorite class, the book.

But don't forget while looking back,
And looking forward too.
That someone saw you through the old,
And watches o'er the new.

Keep God, my senior graduates,
Close to you all the way,
And give Him reason to be there
And reason still to stay.

Out into the night. . . beginning life's fight. . . the parting of the ways. . . of our school days. . . some to work. . . some school. . . some to serve. . . some to rule. . . Homeward at last . . . remembering the past. . . calling to mind important events . . . thrills, joys, sorrows, suspense. . . It's all in the past, the years gone by. . memories that never die. . watching friends passing in review. . . minds wonder, "What's life holding for you?". . . some to be nurses. . . another a secretary. . . some to be nuns. . . others to marry. . . To hours spent in adoration . . . we owe all our future elation. . . a new world we must face. . . with God's help find our place. . . As worthy citizens we display. . . knowledge stored day by day. . . Ignoring strife and stress. . . Striving for God. . . for holiness.
